the object as taken from the constitution. It is to strive for better manhood, citizenship and character. All mes will be solicited to become members, and all will have equal rights and privileges.
And there is such a demand for this kind of an institution and no many appolications are essming in at this early date, the enterprise promises to be a success from the very outset.
Considering the extent of the field and need of such an institution, and the ample privileges and benefits that will be offered, the sum of 6,000 is a modest one to be raised in a city so keenly alive to good works as this is. Yet as most of those living in this section of the city are of limited means, 5,000 would be a crushing burden.

But the work must be done, and the
